

Notes:

This is a tentative exploration of how the Mediacenter application could be adapted to a tablet format. It did not try to be too ambitious, as ideally the TV and tablet versions of the application would share a large amount of their code. Nevertheless, this version of the UI attempts to follow the Android design guidelines more closely than the TV one.

The most interesting aspect of this application is that it would actually serve as a remote. Our HW partners in the project were very keen on having the TV and the tablet add to each other's value.

In case there were more than one mediacenter applications running on the local network, the tablet application would be able to switch from one to the other. It is worth noting that these mediacenters could have access to different sets of media, as they might have different sources enabled, different users for personalized sources, etc.
